Stellar Aerospace Announces Appointment of New President and CEO

London, UK – Feb. 21, 2010 -- Stellar Solutions Aerospace Limited (SSAL), a global provider of aerospace systems engineering support and strategic management services, today announced that it has named Rainer J. Koll to the position of President and CEO. In this role, Koll will be responsible for the overall operation of SSAL as a leading provider of direct systems engineering, programme management and strategic planning support for significant aerospace programmes, as well as spearhead the further development of international cross-sector relationships with key decision makers in the commercial, government, and science sectors. Prior to joining Stellar Aerospace, Koll served as Managing Director and Vice President of Thales Avionics Ltd. and most recently fronted his own management and technology consultancy with a prominent roster of clients including Lufthansa, T-Mobile, VT Miltope, Thales, TriaGnoSys, ESA and the EC. He holds an MBA from City University Business School in London, a Master of Science degree from Goethe University, an engineering degree from Werner von Siemens Technical College in Frankfurt and is a Fellow of the Royal Aeronautical Society

“I’m very pleased to welcome Rainer in this key role,” said Celeste Ford, CEO of Stellar Solutions Inc, the company’s US-based affiliate, “Stellar Aerospace is a top performer in global systems engineering and strategic support services, and I am confident that Rainer’s talent, and his years of both engineering and leadership experience will only strengthen our mutual capabilities and will allow us to further enhance our strategic partnership.”
